

HatchSleepClock - Library

Reservoir

Parents trusted the brand completely — but only for the device.

The project was flattening the content library to surface more of it at once while designing it to feel varied and visually rich, with clear visual differentiation across content categories.

Hatch AI - Agentic flows

The agentic flow project was to introduce "do it for me" flows in the chat interface based on parents' top-asked questions, starting with content recommendations for the right light and sound combinations by child age and adding a caregiver to their device.
